A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Palestine's Jewish National Council yesterday rejected the British ultimatum to co-operate in stamping out terrorism. The underground vowed to "fight to the last breath."

President Truman gave Congress an optimistic report on the first year of the United Nations, but made it clear that many dangers remained.

Continued United States support of international relief after the end of UNRRA was placed at the top of a list of 27 "urgent" proposals Secretary Marshall said he would send to Congress. On the removal of trade barriers, Republicans announced a searching House inquiry opening Feb. 24 into the Administration's reciprocal trade program.

Although the United States and Russia both made several concessions at an informal meeting they were still apart on the American desire for a limitation to prevent the proposed general disarmament group from interfering with the Atomic Energy Commission.

London and Moscow, holding that final disposition of the Japanese-mandated islands should await a peace treaty with Japan, refused to approve at this time the American proposal for trusteeship of those islands.

THE GREAT GAME
OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

New View of Stassen

Washington, Feb. 6. IT IS pleasant—and not without significance—to know that Mr. Harold Stassen, whose ability and character are generally conceded, has shed—at least partially—the shoddy livery of the "true liberalism" and that before this session of Congress is over promises to be thought of generally as a "moderate conservative."

AT any rate, that is the view of close friends who have talked with him lately. They say he is greatly gratified at recent attacks upon him by the far left-wing press, such as the Daily Worker, which now declares that he is "all out against organized labor" (which, of course, is nonsense) and not a "true liberal" at all. Mr. Stassen is reported as feeling that the picture of him as an ineluctable toward radicalism is a deliberate misrepresentation. Though at one time he certainly did stress his own "liberalism" and talk a lot about the necessity of "liberalizing" the Republican party, taking it out of the hands of the "reactionaries," etc., there has never been anything in his public record to justify regarding him as in the least degree radical.

THE truth is that the positions he has most recently taken and the statements he has most recently made seem to put him much more in political harmony with conservatives like Senator Byrd and Senator Taft than with the left-wingers such as Senator Wayne Morse and George Aiken of his own party, or Continued on Page Four

PERKASIE FFA TAKES

Trees in Prime Condition

ACTUAL EXPERIENCE

PERKASIE, Feb. 6—Arrangements have been made for the vocational agriculture class of Perkasio-Sellersville high school to operate the Roy Benner apple orchard in the northern section of Perkasio.

These Future Farmers of America, students at Sell-Perk school, thus have supervision of one of the most productive orchards in upper Bucks County. There are 800 fully matured trees of eight standard varieties of apples. All trees are said to be in prime condition.

A modern power sprayer and all types of tools, together with the use of a large air-conditioned storage house, are included in the arrangement. According to the terms of the agreement, the class will do all the labor and the owner will provide all spraying material and other needs. The profits will be shared.

D. Ker Enslow, head of vocational agriculture at Sell-Perk, is highly elated at the opportunity for actual experience in an important phase of agriculture. With his 25 boys, pruning of trees was begun last week and plans are being made for the application of the dormant spray as soon as pruning is completed.

It is also planned to have State College extension workers give demonstrations in the various phases of orcharding at the school's project. With the facilities provided at the orchard, all phases of the work from pruning to packaging and storage can be adequately demonstrated.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown, Philadelphia, have purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kohlhaas their two-story stucco home and adjoining ground on Oakford avenue, Neshaminy Falls, and will secure possession within the next week. GERLACH PREPARING
NEW "HOUSING BILL"Convinced It Will Solve The Nation's Housing Problem
at Big Saving

FEATURES ARE CITED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—Representative Charles L. Gerlach of the Bucks—Lehigh (8th) district announces that he is preparing a bill which he is convinced will solve the Nation's housing problems at a cost far below the estimated 20 billions of dollars involved in the controversial Taft-Eliender measure which has been pending before Congress since the last session.

The bill on which Mr. Gerlach is working provides:

1. That cities and other municipal units declare a five-year tax moratorium on vacant lots which would be put to use as sites for houses and apartments under the program.

2. That the Federal Government pay the difference in cost per unit between prices which prevailed between rentals were frozen on March 1, 1942, and the price of constructing those units on Jan. 1, 1947.

"Last year," Mr. Gerlach said, "Congress appropriated $450,000,000 to tear down old Army barracks and relocate them in communities with housing shortages and another $100,000,000 for incentive payments to manufacturers of building materials which were in short supply."

TARIFF TRICKERY

When Under-Secretary of State William L. Clayton succeeded in getting Republican leaders in Congress interested in an "escape-clause" compromise on the tariff issue, he got away with the slickest bit of gold-bricking seen in Washington in many months.

He succeeded in upsetting the GOP tariff alignment, and caused a serious delay to Republican plans for tariff amendments, by offering them—something they already had!

That's about as good a trick as selling a man his own house. Fully to understand the irony of the situation, a little background is necessary. The Republican party recently came back into power after years of protesting the New Deal's Reciprocal Trade Agreements on the grounds these were robbing American industry and labor of the protections of adequate tariffs.

The rank and file of the Republican membership is as fully committed as ever to the protective principles which have been the backbone of the party since its first few years of life. Nevertheless, within the party are a few so-called "internationalists" who have been fooled by the propaganda of global free trade.

A split between these factions has threatened the Republican membership in Congress since that body met.

Meanwhile, the New Dealers, armed with power to use further tariff cuts of 50 per cent as "bargaining power" in foreign politics, have been frantically seeking means of preventing the Republicans from curbing this authority.

In this tug-of-war, the New Deal fight is in the hands of President Truman and such assistants as Under-Secretary Clayton.

The identity of the Republican leadership is not so clear. According to current report the most powerful Republican in Congress, Senator Taft, has washed his hands of the matter for the time being. This left it to Senator Vandenberg as a sort of unofficial second in command.

Senator Vandenberg has been obviously reluctant to bring the tariff issue to a head, because it very easily could lead to a review of the United Nations program, which the Senator, by reason of his own participation, presumably would feel to be both premature and embarrassing.

In this deadlock, it was announced this week with a great deal of pride that Senator Vandenberg, assisted by Senator Millikin of Colorado, had worked out a compromise or middle-ground tariff position with Under-Secretaries of State Clayton and Dean Acheson.

SAMUEL B. PETTINGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

The demand made by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder on ex-Secretary Morgenthau for the return of 800 volumes of an alleged "diary," as the property of the United States, highlights the moral decadence that always follows in the train of too much power held too long. "Power always corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

The sound instinct of the American people with respect to government has never been better shown than in their traditional opposition to too-long tenure of public office. Not only are elections frequent in time and non-postponable, but our state constitutions are full of absolute prohibitions against governors, etc., being elected for more than one or two terms.

In time, public officials ease themselves into the pleasing notion that public property becomes their private property. They extend their perquisites and emoluments. They begin to dip their fingers into the till.

The Snyder-Morgenthau incident should be a strong argument for a constitutional amendment forbidding any president from holding office more than two terms.

HIS CAR HITS A BUS

Neibauer Co. Bus Damaged
Slightly at Hulmeville
When Hit by Truck

Pennsylvania State Police, Langhorne barracks, during the storm of Tuesday and throughout yesterday had several accidents reported at the barracks. Most were due to slippery conditions of the highways. In some of the accidents individuals were not hurt, although damage was caused to vehicles.

A Trenton, N. J., physician, Dr. Bertram Bernstein, 31, of 35 Boudnot street, sustained a fracture of the leg when his sedan is said to have skidded into a bus yesterday afternoon. Dr. Bernstein was traveling east on the Lincoln Highway when his machine skidded into a Greyhound bus travelling west, and driven by George Wolf, Philadelphia. Bernstein was removed to Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia.

Police today announced that the woman injured in an accident on the Lincoln highway, east of South Langhorne, at 5.15 Tuesday, during the height of the storm, is Mrs. Cecelia Norton, 47, wife of C. Elvin Norton, Langhorne R. D. 2. Mrs. Norton, who had multiple lacerations of the face, is being held in St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, under observation. She was riding in the sedan operated by her husband when a sedan operated by Sophie Popelusz, 26, of Hulmeville avenue, South Langhorne, is said to have skidded and struck the Norton car. Mr. Norton was treated by a physician at South Langhorne.

Damage to the extent of $50 was caused to a Neibauer Company bus in Hulmeville yesterday at 10:35 a. m. The left side of the panel was harmed when a truck operated by Francis Crowley, South Langhorne, is said to have skidded into the bus operated by W. Henry Roberts, Croydon. The truck was travelling south on Bellevue avenue, and the bus was travelling north, just entering Bellevue avenue from Hulmeville.

In an accident which occurred near the end of Main street, Hulmeville, between that borough and Newportville, Tuesday afternoon at 4:30, slight damage was caused to a car operated by Elizabeth K. Fowler, of Hill and Prospect avenues, Langhorne. The Fowler car was being driven south along the Neshaminy Creek, and was making a left turn toward Midway, when it is said to have been hit by an automobile operated by Thomas Holeman, of Croydon. Holeman failed to halt at a "stop" sign, according to Pennsylvania State Police, he attempting a right turn en route from Midway to Hulmeville.

Police Doubt Story of Hold-Up in Bucks Co.

A search is underway in Bucks County for the two ex-convicts who are said to have killed Cecil Ingling, a Philadelphia police officer, last week.

The search in this county started following a hold-up in Doylestown. Paul Irrgang, a resident of Hallowell, County Line, informed police that he was forced by two men to drive from Willow Grove to Doylestown. He also stated that photographs of James Francis Smith and David Almeida, the fugitives, resembled the men who had held him up.

The two men, Almeida and Smith, have been sought by police since Thursday night, when the Philadelphia police officer, Ingling, was killed after the ex-convicts are said to have held up a super-market at 20th and Fairmount avenues, Philadelphia.

A third man, Edward Hough, 32, who also took part in the super-market holdup, was captured when he either fell or was pushed from a car in which the robbers were fleeing.

The story told by Irrgang: At 1:15 Tuesday morning Irrgang was driving a tow truck north on York road. He picked up the two men on Township Line, near Willow Grove. When he stepped to let them off at County Line, both men drew pistols and ordered Irrgang to drive to Doylestown.

In Doylestown they took $8 from Irrgang and forced him to stop beside a parked automobile, at the wheel of which was an accomplice. The two men got into the automobile and sped away.

Police at Doylestown are said to be of the opinion that the alleged hold-up never occurred. They questioned Irrgang at great length yesterday and he then returned to his home.

ACROSS THE POLE

Spitzbergen is a mountainous group of islands straddling the Arctic Circle to the east of the northern tip of Greenland. It lies halfway between Norway and the North Pole, far northeast of Iceland. Discovered by the Norsemen in 1194, Spitzbergen remained terra nullius until the World War I settlements of 1920, when the powers awarded its absolute sovereignty to Norway.
The United States was a signatory to that treaty, along with Great Britain, Denmark, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Sweden and Norway. Five years later, Russia added its signature, recognizing among other clauses, the one that prohibits from the islands any installations for "warlike purposes." Now, giving sudden authoritative weight to rumors that Moscow has been putting pressure on Norway for a unilateral revision of the treaty, the Soviet official news agency announces that Norway and the Soviet Union have "reached an understanding on the need for a joint defense" of the Spitzbergen archipelago.

An official Oslo statement does not go so far, but admits that Russia has twice asked Norway to agree to a revision, and a British foreign office spokesman says that Moscow has requested facilities to establish military bases on the islands. Both Britain and the United States have been keeping a wary eye on the Soviet moves toward Spitzbergen, and take the stand that the 1920 treaty cannot be altered without the consent of other signatories than Norway.

The tactics of Moscow in this matter are very similar to its attempt to intimidate Turkey into giving Russia control over the Dardanelles, also governed by international convention. Strategically, Spitzbergen has become potentially as important as the Dardanelles. It is 3,500 airline miles from industrial cities of northeastern America and a way-station over the North Pole.

As the presidential aspirants identify themselves by protesting that they hadn't given it a thought, their words are chosen to leave a gaping loophole for the abandonment of cynicism on a second's notice.

Russian talk of international disarmament would be more convincing if Moscow set the example.

This proposal is set forth by the New York Times in the following words:

"Under the new plan, which will probably be adopted regardless of opposition in the House, the Administration will undertake to write into every trade agreement with foreign countries a provision under which either party to the agreement could modify or withdraw any tariff cut that was working undue hardship on any enterprise."

A great many casual followers of the tariff fight greeted this as a happy thought, and were somewhat surprised that, instead of smoothing down the developing fight, it seemed to have made it still more turbulent.

As a matter of fact, the proposal was a slippery piece of double-talk that shouldn't fool anyone a minute—certainly not anyone qualified to discuss tariff issues. Why?

IT'S ALREADY BEING DONE!

This statement is perfectly easy to prove. The texts of all Trade Agreements after the first one or two experimental ones all contain "escape clauses" of some kind. Recent ones have been standardized, and are identical with what is offered by the "new" proposal.

For a more detailed statement of the matter, turn back to the record of the House Committee on Ways and Means on the Trade Agreements Act. The date is April 26, 1945. The witness is the Hon. Oscar B. Ryder, Chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, submitting a prepared statement on behalf of the extension of the Act.

Here is what he said about the "escape clause," now submitted as a fresh scheme for a compromise:

"In order to protect against unforeseen situations which may develop after a trade agreement is made, more general safeguards are required than those which relate to individual concessions."

"Such a provision was first included in the agreement with Argentina (proclaimed on October 31, 1941) article XII, of which stipulates that either country may terminate the arrangement in whole or in part, on short notice, in the event that any circumstance arises to prejudice its industry or commerce, and that it is found impossible to adjust the matter satisfactorily."

"Practically all agreements contain a provision permitting quota action to regulate imports of any scheduled article if necessitated by governmental measures operating to regulate or control the production, market supply or price of the like domestic article, or to increase the labor cost of production of such articles."

It might be observed that a close reading of the Trade Agreements would seem to make it virtually mandatory upon the President to insist that some such escape clause be inserted in all the agreements.

Propagandists fighting to save the Trade Agreement scheme are centering their publicity on the "escape clause" as the principal point in the suggested compromise. The plan has, however, two other supposedly "new" points—one, to give all interested parties a hearing before tariff changes are put into effect; and the second, to call upon other Cabinet members besides the State Department to "backstop" in making the decision.

How far these points are from being "new" can be shown in a single quotation from none other than Mr. Clayton himself, in the House Ways and Means Committee hearings already referred to (April 20, 1945):

"... the act (Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act) ... says that before any trade agreement is concluded we must make a public announcement of intention to negotiate such agreement and give all interested persons an opportunity to present their views; moreover, the act provides that prior to making an agreement information and advice shall be sought from the United States Tariff Commission, the Departments of Agriculture and Commerce, and other Government agencies."

The boldness of presenting these points as being a new ground for compromise, when they have existed since the Act was written, is staggering. This is audacity, with a vengeance! Of course, the trickery back of the move is easy to see.

The Republican majority is being offered what is called a "compromise"—a list of "concessions" which concede nothing. Since the public at large is wholly unaware of the true nature of these details, and since many Republican Congressmen themselves are unacquainted with the provisions of the law, the tendency will be to accept the proposals at their face value.

The expected reaction will be that President Truman and his staff have made a fair and honest effort to meet the Republicans halfway—when nothing of the sort has happened.

None of these "safeguards" has safeguarded industry and farming in the past.

Trotting them out now as something new and conciliatory is the most blatant sort of political trickery.

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

NOW we can really have a choice of patterns in sterling silver flatware. I was thrilled with the beautiful "Heirloom" and "International" sterling in the Snellenburg Silverware Dept. The Heirloom Company's "Heirloom" and "Virginia" patterns are indeed precious. International's "Spring Glory," "Enchantress," "Courtship," and "Prelude" make choice difficult. Or perhaps you would prefer National Silver's "Overture" or "Margaret Rose." See what a lovely choice you have? Prices range from $15.99, plus 20% tax, to $19.79, plus 20% tax, a place setting of six pieces. Nice that all these are available with spring weddings being so close. (1st fl.)

SHOWER GIFTS to an engaged girl should, I think, be useful, practical. Usually they cannot be too expensive. Lately I saw a perfect shower gift at a perfect price—$2.45. It is a specially packed gift package of eleven pieces of Pyrex cooking ware. I was amazed to find that the package contains a 1½-quart casserole, a 1-quart utility dish, a 1-quart loaf pan, an 8-inch pie plate, a 1-quart round cake dish, plus 6 Pyrex custard cups! But why confine this grand collection to bridal showers? For one, am going to gift my own kitchen! You'll find the Pyrex gift package in the Snellenburg China and Glassware Dept. (3rd fl.)

BRIDAL VEILS to your order, my dear engaged girls! Interested? Then hire yourselves to the little balcony leading up from the Snellenburg second floor, 11th St. side. There a veil expert will talk over fingertip veils, with beaded or orange blossom tulle, at $29 to $39. Full length veils cost from $35 to $69, the latter silk veiling from France! Then there are delightful bridesmaid head-dresses to be considered, usually priced at from $3.50 to $8, some with flowers and others with ostrich tips or sweet bonnet arrangements. Why not order early? (2nd fl. balcony.)

HANKIES! For men or women, and certainly bargains. For example, the Snellenburg Handkerchief Counter is now selling at 59¢, men's $1 value imported initiated hand-embroidered handkerchiefs with hand-rolled hems. Regular $1 and $1.25 Madeira handkerchiefs for women can also be had at 59¢. This is a Handkerchief Counter to watch. Do be sure to get your share of these 59¢ ones. (1st fl.)

PRESCRIPTIONS are filled with fidelity at the Snellenburg Drug Counter—right next to the Book Dept. In charge is a well-known registered pharmacist. The highest grade pharmaceutical and chemical preparations are used. Often prescriptions can be filled while one does shopping. The Counter also carries the usual patent medicines, etc. Nice Service. (1st fl.)

STUDENT HELP. Orderly notes contribute to the success of a school term. So see that the boys and girls start out this February with a new loose leaf ring-binder or two. The Snellenburg Leather Goods Dept. has a highly convenient number at the reasonable price of $3.50, plus the 20% tax. It makes a grand gift. No extraneous notes can slip out of it, either, due to a complete three-way zipper. The simulated brown leather cover wears long and well. This binder holds standard size 8½" x 11" paper. (1st fl.)

"TRADITIONAL" CHARM is found in the satisfying group of little "occasional" end and lamp tables gathered in—all places—the Art Needlework Dept. of the Snellenburg store. These excellent bits of furniture are of hard wood with nicely mated mahogany finish, yet are priced at but $7.55 to $12.74. There are quite a variety of shapes from which to choose. Oh yes, and there are some small upholstered mahogany footstools at but $5.95. All make lovely wedding gifts, as well as being nice additions to our own furniture. (2nd fl.)

SEW YOUR OWN, beginning as of now! The prettiest spring and summer materials are pouring into the Snellenburg Yard Goods Dept. By making your own frocks you can have twice and even three times as many for the price of readymades. The Pattern Dept. nearby has many charming, simple as well as elaborated patterns. I noticed particularly some "Erin Girl" crash in the Yard Goods Dept., a delightful cotton weave in Mexican prints, blazing tropical patterns, etc. Thirty-six inches wide and only 64¢ a yard. This same material can be used for play clothes, children's clothes and even curtains! Fast colors and easy to launder. (2nd fl.)

P.S. Do send clippings with mail orders, when you can! Phone free (5¢, 10¢, and 15¢ out-of-town calls only). Penna.—EXT. 10160; Jersey—WX-1150. Shop located Market, 11th to 12th Sts., Phila.—through to 1125-29 Chestnut St. Be hearin' from you! Faithfully, FAITH.

Highways Remain Menace As Temperatures Stay Low

With sub-zero temperatures commonplace in many areas in Pennsylvania today, Bristol thermometers registered eight degrees higher at eight o'clock this morning than they did at the same hour yesterday.

The mercury at Rohm & Haas Co. weather observatory stood at 13 above zero this morning at eight, having mounted two degrees from the 11 shown at midnight.

With the below freezing temperatures highways continued to be a menace to motorists, most being sheets of ice and hard-packed snow.

Service stations had their "wreckers" on the go from late Tuesday afternoon on into yesterday and again throughout the night in many instances. Calls were constantly coming in from motorists whose cars had skidded into ditches or become frozen.

Throughout the State the winter's most severe cold wave continued to hold its icy grip.

No respite from the frigid temperatures was in the offing from the weather bureau for today, although forecasters believed the mercury may get over the freezing point tomorrow afternoon.

The cold wave thus far has accounted for one death in the Philadelphia area. Mrs. Mary Martin, 48, was found frozen a short distance from her home by her 12-year-old son, George.

Throughout the State the mercury was reported plunging to new lows: While Philadelphians experienced five-degree temperatures, they could find comfort in the knowledge that it was 12 below zero in a Hazleton suburb, while Curwensville, in Clearfield county reported 10 below.

But these temperatures were balmy compared to some in western Pennsylvania where the cold wave struck hard. The coldest spot in the State, according to the weather bureau, was 20 miles south of Clermont, in McKean county, where the mercury settled at 22 below zero.

Kane, the perennial ice box of the state, reported 13 below.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

LAMB in all its many forms has long been a staple food on the American dinner table. Originally introduced to the Americas by the explorers from the old world, it was adopted as part of the regular menu by the first settlers.

At one time in our national race to lead the world, sheep and their raising assumed such a great importance that many men lost their lives in the dispute over whether sheep or cattle would use the great grazing lands of the west. Even today a cattle man and a sheep raiser have little in common. Cattle men have always claimed that sheep eat the grass so close to the roots that after they pass no beef cattle can again use the range for some time.

Lamb has many uses on the American dinner table, according to the A & P Service for Home-Makers. The most used are leg of lamb and the lamb chop. However, lamb lends itself more than well to the stew pot or to a real curry.

Stews are great American stand-bys and quite often there is a goodly quantity left over after a meal. A good use for this leftover stew is Shepherd's Pie. This is made by lining a baking dish with hot mashed potatoes and filling the center with hot stew. Cover with additional mashed potatoes and place in a hot oven at 425 degrees for 15 minutes or until the potatoes are brown.

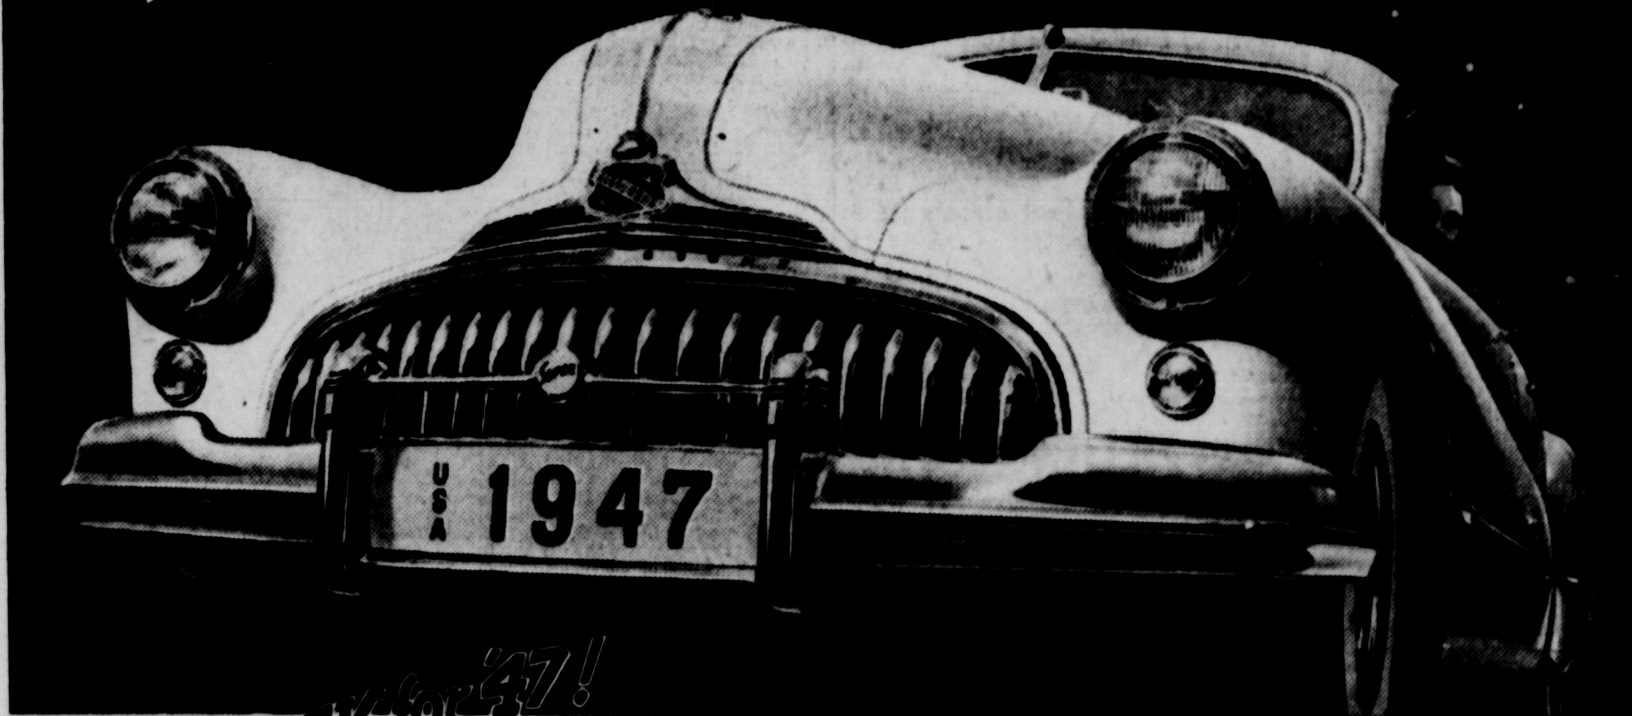

For Sunday dinner try a tomato juice cocktail, roast leg of lamb, mashed potatoes and fresh green peas. Follow this with a dessert of canned peaches and a beverage.

ACROSS THE POLE

Spitzbergen is a mountainous group of islands straddling the Arctic Circle to the east of the northern tip of Greenland. It lies halfway between Norway and the North Pole, far northeast of Iceland. Discovered by the Norsemen in 1194, Spitzbergen remained terra nullius until the World War I settlements of 1920, when the powers awarded its absolute sovereignty to Norway.

The United States was a signatory to that treaty, along with Great Britain, Denmark, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Sweden and Norway. Five years later, Russia added its signature, recognizing among other clauses, the one that prohibits from the islands any installations for "warlike purposes." Now, giving sudden authoritative weight to rumors that Moscow has been putting pressure on Norway for a unilateral revision of the treaty, the Soviet official news agency announces that Norway and the Soviet Union have "reached an understanding on the need for a joint defense" of the Spitzbergen archipelago.

An official Oslo statement does not go so far, but admits that Russia has twice asked Norway to agree to a revision, and a British foreign office spokesman says that Moscow has requested facilities to establish military bases on the islands. Both Britain and the United States have been keeping a wary eye on the Soviet moves toward Spitzbergen, and take the stand that the 1920 treaty cannot be altered without the consent of other signatories than Norway.

The tactics of Moscow in this matter are very similar to its attempt to intimidate Turkey into giving Russia control over the Dardanelles, also governed by international convention. Strategically, Spitzbergen has become potentially as important as the Dardanelles. It is 3,500 airline miles from industrial cities of northeastern America and a way-station over the North Pole.

As the presidential aspirants identify themselves by protesting that they hadn't given it a thought, their words are chosen to leave a gaping loophole for the abandonment of coyness on a second notice.

Russian talk of international disarmament would be more convincing if Moscow set the example.

Alterations to radiator grills are under way at the motor car factories, and soon the 1947 models will be making their appearance.

One proposal is to reduce the national debt, which we owe only to ourselves, at the rate of five billions a year. What! Dig up all that money to pay ourselves?

Two hundred million years ago huge reptiles ruled America, according to scientists. Today there are only a few snakes in the grass.

Perhaps the House sergeant-at-arms, whose accounts are short $125,000, thought it was lend-lease.

This proposal is set forth by the New York Times in the following words:

"Under the new plan, which will probably be adopted regardless of opposition in the House, the Administration will undertake to write into every trade agreement with foreign countries a provision under which either party to the agreement could modify or withdraw any tariff cut that was working undue hardship on any enterprise."

A great many casual followers of the tariff fight greeted this as a happy thought, and were somewhat surprised that, instead of smoothing down the developing fight, it seemed to have made it still more turbulent.

As a matter of fact, the proposal was a slippery piece of double-talk that shouldn't fool anyone a minute—certainly not anyone qualified to discuss tariff issues. Why?

IT'S ALREADY BEING DONE!

This statement is perfectly easy to prove. The texts of all Trade Agreements after the first one or two experimental ones all contain "escape clauses" of some kind. Recent ones have been standardized, and are identical with what is offered by the "new" proposal.

For a more detailed statement of the matter, turn back to the record of the House Committee on Ways and Means on the Trade Agreements Act. The date is April 26, 1945. The witness is the Hon. Oscar B. Ryder, Chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, submitting a prepared statement on behalf of the extension of the Act.

Here is what he said about the "escape clause," now submitted as a fresh scheme for a compromise:

"In order to protect against unforeseen situations which may develop after a trade agreement is made, more general safeguards are required than those which relate to individual concessions."

"Such a provision was first included in the agreement with Argentina (proclaimed on October 31, 1941) article XII, of which stipulates that either country may terminate the arrangement in whole or in part, on short notice, in the event that any circumstance arises to prejudice its industry or commerce, and that it is found impossible to adjust the matter satisfactorily."

"Practically all agreements contain a provision permitting quota action to regulate imports of any scheduled article if necessitated by governmental measures operating to regulate or control the production, market supply or price of the like domestic article, or to increase the labor cost of production of such articles."

It might be observed that a close reading of the Trade Agreements would seem to make it virtually mandatory upon the President to insist that some such escape clause be inserted in all the agreements.

Propagandists fighting to save the Trade Agreement scheme are centering their publicity on the "escape clause" as the principal point in the suggested compromise. The plan has, however, two other supposedly "new" points—one, to give all interested parties a hearing before tariff changes are put into effect; and the second, to call upon other Cabinet members besides the State Department to "backstop" in making the decision.

How far these points are from being "new" can be shown in a single quotation from none other than Mr. Clayton himself, in the House Ways and Means Committee hearings already referred to (April 20, 1945):

"... the act (Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act) ... says that before any trade agreement is concluded we must make a public announcement of intention to negotiate such agreement and give all interested persons an opportunity to present their views; moreover, the act provides that prior to making an agreement information and advice shall be sought from the United States Tariff Commission, the Departments of Agriculture and Commerce, and other Government agencies."

The boldness of presenting these points as being a new ground for compromise, when they have existed since the Act was written, is staggering. This is audacity, with a vengeance!

Of course, the trickery back of the move is easy to see. The Republican majority is being offered what is called a "compromise"—a list of "concessions" which concede nothing. Since the public at large is wholly unaware of the true nature of these details, and since many Republican Congressmen themselves are unacquainted with the provisions of the law, the tendency will be to accept the proposals at their face value.

The expected reaction will be that President Truman and his staff have made a fair and honest effort to meet the Republicans halfway—when nothing of the sort has happened.

None of these "safeguards" has safeguarded industry and farming in the past.

Trotting them out now as something new and conciliatory is the most blatant sort of political trickery.

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

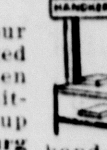

NOW we can really have a choice of patterns in sterling silver flatware. I was thrilled with the beautiful "Heirloom" and "International" sterling. In the Snellenburg Silverware Dept. The Heirloom Company's "Heiress" and "Virginia" patterns are indeed precious. International's "Spring Glory," "Enchantress," "Courtship," and "Prelude" make choice difficult. Or perhaps you would prefer National Silver's "Overture" or "Margaret Rose." See what a lovely choice you have? Prices range from $15.99, plus 20% tax, to $19.79, plus 20% tax, a place setting of six pieces. Nice that all these are available with spring weddings being so close. (1st fl.)

SHOWER GIFTS to an engaged girl should, I think, be useful, practical. Usually they cannot be too expensive. Lately I saw a perfect shower gift at a perfect price—$2.45. It is a specially packed gift package of eleven pieces of Pyrex cooking ware. I was amazed to find that the package contains a 1½-quart casserole, a 1-quart utility dish, a 1-quart loaf pan, an 8-inch pie plate, a 1-quart round cake dish, plus 6 Pyrex custard cups! But why confine this grand collection to bridal showers? I, for one, am going to gift my own kitchen! You'll find the Pyrex gift package in the Snellenburg China and Glassware Dept. (3rd fl.)

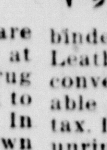

BRIDAL VELS to your order, my dear engaged girls! Interested? Then hie yourselves to the little balcony leading up from the Snellenburg second floor, 11th St. side. There a veil expert will talk over fingertip veils, with beaded or orange blossom tiaras, at $29 to $39. Full length veils cost from $35 to $60, the latter silk veiling from France! Then there are delightful bridesmaid head-dresses to be considered, usually priced at from $3.50 to $8, some with flowers and others with ostrich tips or sweet bonnet arrangements. Why not order early? (2nd fl. balcony.)

HANKIES! For men or women, and certainly bargains. For example, the Snellenburg Handkerchief Counter is now selling at 59c, not $1 value imported initial hand-embroidered handkerchiefs with hand-rolled hems. Regular $1 and $1.25 Madeira handkerchiefs for women can also be had at 59c. This is a Handkerchief Counter to watch. Do be sure to get your share of these 59c ones. (1st fl.)

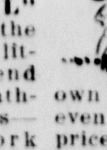

PRESCRIPTIONS are filled with fidelity at the Snellenburg Drug Counter—right next to the Book Dept. In charge is a well-known registered pharmacist. The highest grade pharmaceutical and chemical preparations are used. Often prescriptions can be filled while one is shopping. The Counter also carries the usual patent medicines, etc. Nice Service. (1st fl.)

STUDENT HELP. Orderly notes contribute to the success of a school term. So see that the boys and girls start out this February with a new loose leaf ring-binder or two. The Snellenburg Leather Goods Dept. has a highly convenient number at the reasonable price of $3.50, plus the 20% tax. It makes grand gift. No extra unringed notes can slip out of it, either, due to a complete three-way zipper. The simulated brown leather cover wears long and well. This binder holds standard size 8½" x 11" paper. (1st fl.)

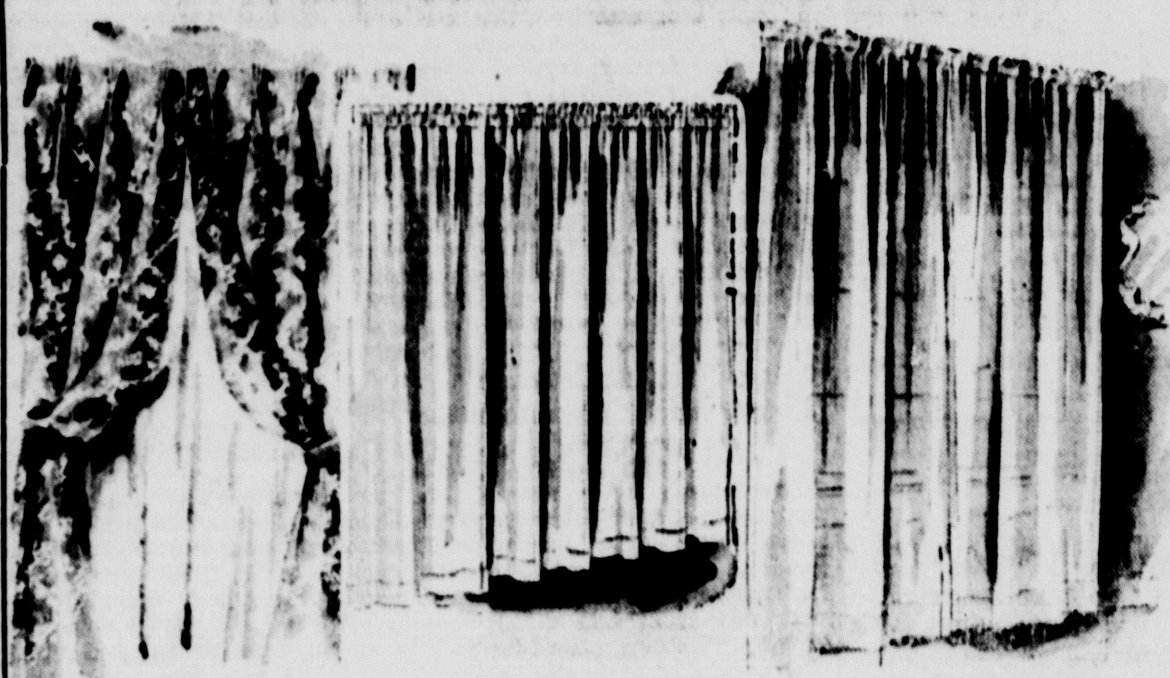

"TRADITIONAL" CHARM is found in the satisfying group of little "occasional" end and lamp tables gathered in—of all places—the Art Needlework Dept. of the Snellenburg store. These excellent bits of furniture are of hard wood with nicely matted mahogany finish, yet are priced at but $7.55 to $12.74. There are quite a variety of shapes from which to choose. Oh yes, and there are some small upholstered mahogany footstools at but $5.95. All make lovely wedding gifts, as well as being nice additions to our own furniture. (2nd fl.)

SEW YOUR OWN, beginning as of now! The prettiest spring and summer materials are pouring into the Snellenburg Yard Goods Dept. By making your own frocks you can have twice and even three times as many for the price of readymades. The Pattern Dept. nearby has many charming, simple as well as elaborated patterns. I noticed particularly some "Erin Girl" crash in the Yard Goods Dept., a delightful cotton weave in Mexican prints, blazing tropical patterns, etc. Thirty-six inches wide and only 64c a yard. This same material can be used for play clothes, children's clothes and even curtains! Fast colors and easy to launder. (2nd fl.)

P.S. Do send clippings with mail orders, when you can! Phone free (5c, 10c, and 15c out-of-town calls only). Penna.—EXT. 10160; Jersey—WX-1150. Shop located Market, 11th to 12th Sts., Phila.—through to 1125-29 Chestnut St. Be hearin' from you! Faithfully, FAITH.

For more than one or two terms, Presidential office should be the honor of Caesar's wife. Elliott Roosevelt is just back from Moscow. He is the through whom the exchange of international policy should be handled. And as they flow (unless they should become the property of all the American people. Instead, Elliott Roosevelt, his father's prestige, obtains Stalin statements laudatory to his father and, by implication, to President Truman. The view appears in a magazine, and again to Elliott Roosevelt is not stated.

Mr. Hopkins sold magazine rights repeatedly material for the government. Cabinet members have been charged with this government plan for private missions. In national parks, officials have had the use of official cottages for a pittance per month. The naval hospital in Washington has been used by scores of officials to obtain medical and surgical care costing heavy money to taxpayer, but taken money to the patient.

Public Papers and Addresses" in volumes, have been privately sold, bearing the words "Copyrighted by Franklin D. Roosevelt." Members of the President's staff were appointed by him to his office.

Members of a President have feathered their nests in insurance, aviation and motion pictures. Wives of officials have received costly gifts for smashing champagne on the little boats. Even the cost of gifts of foreign governments, costing thousands of dollars, has been in the news. Battleships have been given away as if they were the personal baubles of a king. Libraries, personal shrines, and the whole story? Then how many more?

Mr. Brandeis once said: "Our government is the potent the omniscient teacher. For good or ill, it is the whole people by its example. Crime is contagious." When a family has been exposed to contagious disease, a good wife fumigates. By all means, fumigate!

Highways Remain Menace As Temperatures Stay Low

With sub-zero temperatures commonplace in many areas in Pennsylvania today, Bristol thermometers registered eight degrees higher at eight o'clock this morning than they did at the same hour yesterday.

The mercury at Rohm & Haas Co. weather observatory stood at 13 above zero this morning at eight, having mounted two degrees from the 11 shown at midnight.

With the below freezing temperatures highways continued to be a menace to motorists, most being sheets of ice and hard-packed snow. Service stations had their "wreckers" on the go from late Tuesday afternoon on into yesterday and again throughout the night in many instances. Calls were constantly coming in from motorists whose cars had skidded into ditches or become frozen.

Throughout the State the winter's most severe cold wave continued to hold its icy grip.

No respite from the frigid temperatures was in the offing from the weather bureau for today, although forecasters believed the mercury may get over the freezing point tomorrow afternoon.

The cold wave thus far has accounted for one death in the Philadelphia area. Mrs. Mary Martin, 38, was found frozen a short distance from her home by her 12-year-old son, George.

Throughout the State the mercury was reported plunging to new lows. While Philadelphians experienced five-degree temperatures, they could find comfort in the knowledge that it was 12 below zero in a Hazleton suburb, while Curwensville, in Clearfield county reported 10 below.

But these temperatures were balmy compared to some in western Pennsylvania where the cold wave struck hard. The coldest spot in the State, according to the weather bureau, was 20 miles south of Clermont, in McKean county, where the mercury settled at 22 below zero. Kane, the perennial ice box of the state, reported 13 below.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

LAMB in all its many forms has long been a staple food on the American dinner table. Originally introduced to the Americas by the explorers from the old world, it was adopted as part of the regular menu by the first settlers.

At one time in our national race to lead the world, sheep and their raising assumed such a great importance that many men lost their lives in the dispute over whether sheep or cattle would use the great grazing lands of the west. Even today a cattle man and a sheep raiser have little in common. Cattle men have always claimed that sheep eat the grass so close to the roots that after they pass no beef cattle can again use the range for some time.

Lamb has many uses on the American dinner table, according to the A & P Service for Home-Makers. The most used are leg of lamb and the lamb chop. However, lamb lends itself more than well to the stew pot or to a real curry.

Stews are great American stand-bys and quite often there is a goodly quantity left over after a meal. A good use for this leftover stew is Shepherd's Pie. This is made by lining a baking dish with hot mashed potatoes and filling the center with hot stew. Cover with additional mashed potatoes and place in a hot oven at 425 degrees for 15 minutes or until the potatoes are brown.

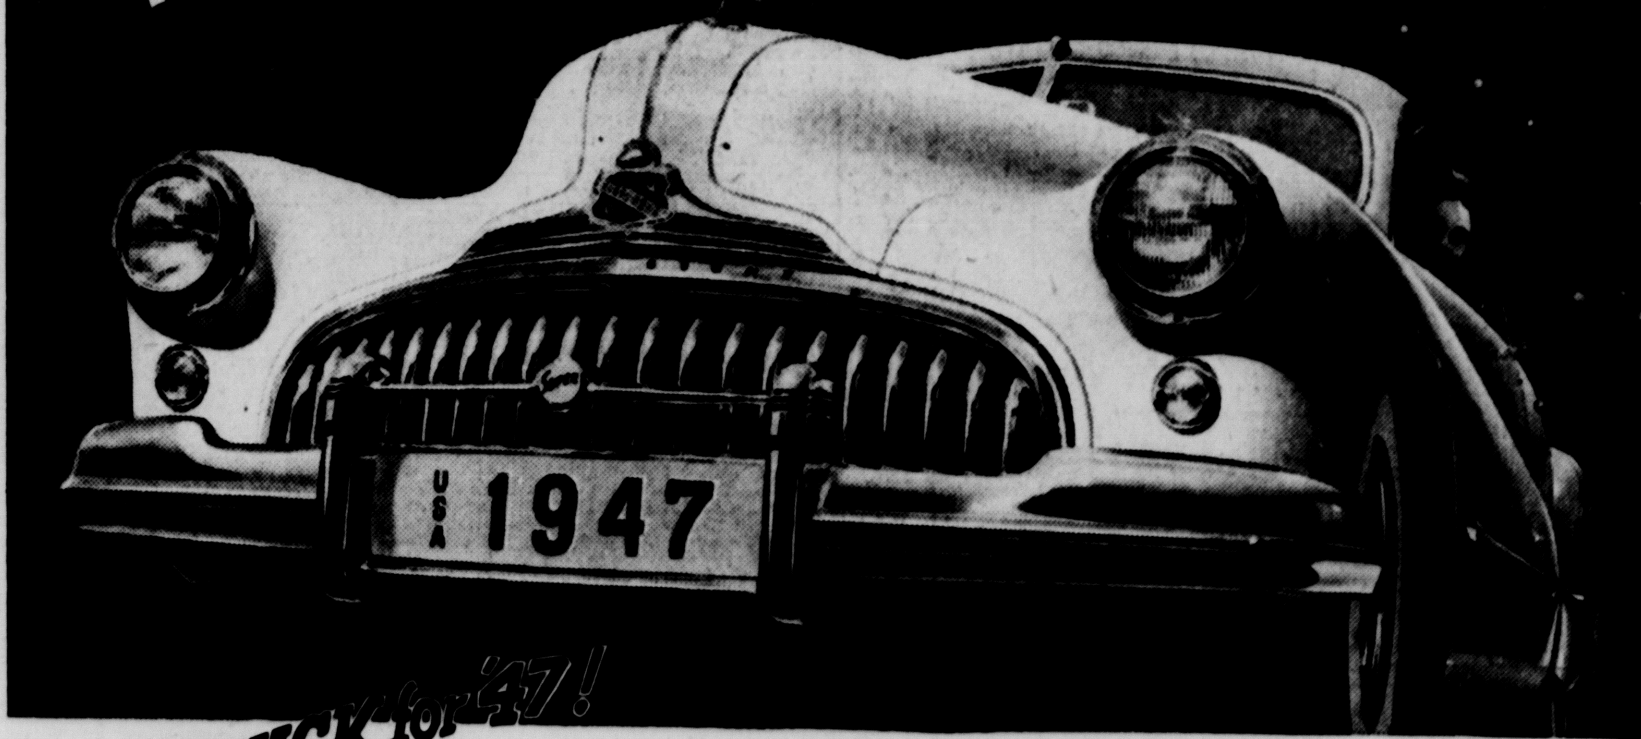

For Sunday dinner try a tomato juice cocktail, roast leg of lamb, mashed potatoes and fresh green peas. Follow this with a dessert of canned peaches and a beverage.

STOP, LOOK, REMEMBER

WICHITA, Kans. — (INS) — Paul Bradley, driver of a special bus that carried delegates to their convention in Dalhart, Tex., carefully counted their suitcases before the bus left Wichita. It wasn't until he got 50 miles away from the terminal that he discovered he had left his own suitcase behind.

NEW YORK — (INS) — The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals cared for over 267,218 animals of all kinds in its various departments during the year 1946. It was reported by Alexander S. Webb, president, at the 81st annual meeting of the Society.

Our Father, we call upon Thee today in the interest of the many sick and shut-ins. We pray that by every available means, Thou wilt minister unto them. RED CROSS TO MARK 30TH ANNIVERSARY

Production Corps, Southeastern Pa. Chapter, Will Celebrate Occasion Feb. 12th

WILL WORK AS USUAL

On February 12 — Lincoln's Birthday — the Production Corps, Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter, American Red Cross, will celebrate its 30th anniversary.

Although it is a legal holiday, the volunteer workers of the Production Corps will go on working, just as they did throughout the recent war. Because, for the American Red Cross, there is always a war — a grim conflict with human misery.

And the Production Corps has a big job to do these days, sewing garments and providing surgical dressings for the shivering, suffering millions of Europe and Asia.

During the war, demands for surgical dressings to bind the wounds of American fighting men reached astronomical figures. On one occasion volunteer Red Cross workers at 250 auxiliaries and 61 branches, filled an order for 1,000,000 dressings in a single month.

The Red Cross Production Corps also turned out 1,136,839 sewed garments including 15,978 layettes; 366,607 knitted garments; 17,771 kit bags and filled 145,750 overseas kits for servicemen. The number of volunteers in the five-county area embraced by the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter totaled 46,669 for the period from September 7, 1929 to December 31, 1945. They gave 21,649,107 hours in the service of the Red Cross.

Old and young, rich and poor, the volunteer workers come from many walks of life. But they are all united by a single ideal: dedication to the service of the distressed. Their only reward is in the work itself — and in the thousands of letters of heartfelt gratitude that fill the office files.

Many of the letters are dramatic and comprise miniature personal histories of human work created by the power-mad dictators of Europe and Asia. Some are amusing — such as the one from the little Dutch boy who thought all Americans were cowboys by trade.

The overalls sent him by the Red Cross appeared to him a feasible substitute for the chaps worn by the Western range riders. His letter to the Red Cross was one of protest because his mother wrecked his cowboy ambitions. Unimaginatively, she cut up the overalls to make shorts for both the letter-writer and his small brother!

An English housewife wrote a touching little note of thanks for a Red Cross parcel of baby clothing. Expecting twins, she said she didn't know what she would have done without the Red Cross gift.

One of the most moving letters came from a 14-year-old French girl, orphaned by the bombardment of Lille, and left in complete charge of three little brothers.

"I have had much trouble, having been made mistress of the household so young," she wrote. "May I thank our Allies the Americans very much who have made it possible to bring to an end this evil war?"

The Production Corps started with a terse message received by Mrs. Thomas Potter, Jr., of the Kenilworth Apartments, Germantown. Mrs. Potter, now 91, was over 69 when she was notified of her appointment as chairman of what then was called the Workrooms Department.

"Begin active work as soon as possible," was the message from Red Cross National Headquarters. The work started on the street floor of 221 S. 18th street. Within a few months, the demand for supplies had swollen to such proportions that the number of volunteers totaled more than 40,000 operating in 500 workrooms.

The war may be over, but its aftermath in Europe and Asia is almost as terrible as the conflict itself. So the 30th anniversary of the Red Cross Production Corps will be just another day for the volunteer workers. They, like the members of the other eight Red Cross Volunteer Special Services, have a job to do.

And with your support in the 1947 Red Cross Fund Campaign, they intend to keep right on doing it.

Both parties win when you use Want Ads.

PENNSYLVANIA LEADS IN INDUSTRIAL POWER

From 1939 To 1946 Led Nation In Consumption of Electrical Energy

FAR EXCEEDS NEW YO EXCEEDS NEW YORK

Pennsylvania is America's greatest user of industrial electric power.
During the eight years from 1939 to 1946 inclusive, the Commonwealth led the Nation in its consumption of electric energy for industrial use in all but one year, and in 1946 exceeded its nearest rival, the State of New York, by nearly two billion kilowatt hours.

During the last three years the State's use of electric energy for industrial purposes has exceeded that of any other state by a wider margin than at any time in the past decade.

Pennsylvania is also the largest producer of non-utility electric energy; the second largest producer of electric energy by public utilities, and the largest producer of electric energy from the burning of fuel.

As the leading coal producing
State of the Union, the Commonwealth also provides an important part of the source of electric energy generated in many of its neighboring states.

These facts are indicative of the tremendous reserves of power available for the manufacturers of the Commonwealth and of the success with which the State has maintained its industrial production in the years of war and the first year of peace.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often
Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood.
They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Duan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 20 years. Duan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Duan's Pills.

Suggestions For Serving A Savory Meat and Vegetable Pie

A good meat pie is a man's delight! The appetizing aroma of this homey dish stirs the appetite. The savory blend of flavorful meat and vegetables, rich gravy and crisp, tender crust brings utter satisfaction in the eating.

As for the "little woman" who prepares the dinner—meat pies are among her favorite standbys; because they're so easy to make and to serve, and they can be varied in so many ways. A meat pie is something she can count on to make left-overs exciting. She relies on them, also, when she has to make a limited amount of meat go around the family.

Whether the meat pie is made with left-over meat from yesterday's dinner, or perhaps some canned meat from the emergency shelf, the topping of the pie should receive due attention. An attractive and delicious topping contributes greatly to the charm of a meat pie. Changing the topping from one time to the next is an excellent way to make each meat pie seem like a brand new dish.

The popular biscuit crust may be varied by adding appropriate herbs or a pinch of curry powder to the dough, adding grated cheese, or using tomato juice for the liquid. Instead of an all-over crust, the dough may be cut in small rounds, diamonds, crescents, or doughnut shapes. Corn meal biscuits are especially delicious on a veal or ham pie.

Biscuit pinwheels make a decorative topping and offer many possibilities for variation. The biscuit dough is rolled in a rectangle, spread with any desired filling, then rolled up like a jelly roll and cut in slices. Sliced mushrooms browned in butter, tomato catsup, grated cheese, peanut butter, parsley or pimiento butter are a few suggestions for the filling of the pinwheels.

If regular pastry is preferred for the meat pie crust, well and good. Instead of covering the whole pie, however, the pastry may be cut in strips for a lattice top. Pastry cut-outs may also be used. These conserve pastry; and the cutout shapes can be chosen to fit special occasions.

A mashed potato topping is a pleasant change from the biscuit or pastry crust. Either white or sweet potatoes may be used; they should be whipped free of lumps and properly seasoned. Duchess potatoes (mashed white potatoes with egg added) make a somewhat richer topping. Of course, when potatoes are put on the top of the meat pie, they are omitted from the pie itself.

Here are two other suggestions. One is a topping of corn meal mush, for a tamale pie in the Mexican style. The other is bread cubes (from day-old bread) which have been lightly fried in hot drippings. These give a delightfully crusty and flavorful finish to any meat pie.

GRAPEFRUIT PECOS

1 egg
1 cup grapefruit juice, chilled
1 to 2 tablespoons honey
Dash of salt
Nutmeg
Beat egg until foamy. Add grapefruit juice slowly, beating constantly. Beat in honey and salt. Pour into a chilled glass. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Makes 1 large serving.

Notes: The amount of honey required depends upon the tartness of the grapefruit juice. For a sweet drink, more than 2 tablespoons may be needed.

Three-fourths cup of orange, pineapple or grape juice and 1/4 cup lemon or lime juice can be substituted for the grapefruit juice.

Corn syrup can be used in place of honey.

Add carrot mixture and vanilla and blend. Turn into a well-greased 1-quart casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 1 hour, or until pudding is well-browned and set. Serve at once with a vanilla or raisin sauce. Makes 6 servings.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Lem's Dogs vs.
Thad's Chickens

Running a newspaper, you get to know a lot about human nature.

Thad Phipps was in the other day, all burned up. Wanted me to run an item on how Lem Martin's dog had raided his chickens again, and ought to be put away by law. I told him: "Lem was in on Saturday. Said you shouldn't be allowed to keep those chickens so close to his house—and in a residential zone, at that."

Thad shuts up right pronto then. And that very evening I see him making his peace with Lem at Andy Botkin's Garden Tavern—over a friendly glass of beer.

From where I sit, anyone can find something in his neighbor to complain about. (Some folks may even disagree with Thad's right to enjoy that glass of beer with Lem!) But where would we be if everybody tried to have a law passed against everything they disagreed with? We wouldn't have many neighbors left!

BUNNIES OUT TO WIN EIGHTH STRAIGHT GAME

Bristol High to Meet Buckingham Team Here Tonight

GAME STARTS AT 7.30

Visitors are Battling to Grab Hold on Second Place In League

The Bristol High Bunnies will seek its eighth straight Lower Bucks County victory tonight on the home floor when it lines up against the Buckingham High School quintet. The preliminary game between the two schools' junior varsity squads will start at 7.30 p. m.

Buckingham is the only Lower Bucks school that has not tasted the wrath of the Bristol scoring power. The game was originally scheduled for January 24th but was postponed. "The Bucks" are battling to grab hold of second place in the circuit, it being one-half game away from the second-place Southampton team. Should Buckingham beat Bristol, it will have a fine opportunity of representing the Lower Bucks Class B schools.

Coch Petterman will start the following: "Dezzy" Delise, "Johnny" Pindar, "Jim" Sottile, "Easy" Mama and "Al" Burton. Coach McClister's starting line-up in the junior varsity game will be: Missanelli, Esposito, Bowen, Pone and Indelicato.
